HEAVY LOSS TO A WEST POINT FIRM. The schooner A. Corson, Captain Dutton, sailed from the West Point steam saw-mill of Messrs. Alilson, White & Co. on the 8th instant loaded with 61,000 feet of cypress jumber, and bound for Baltimore. She was abandoned off James Point, in the Chesapeake bay, during the storm of the 17th, and her cargo was a total loss to the above mentioned firm. The captain, in his affi-davit, states that when he shandoned her the deck cargo was intact. He took his yawl-boat and crew and landed on the western shore, made his way to Baltimore, and thence to York river for the purpose of pro-curing another vessel and going to the abandoned schooner and recovering, if possible, a portion of the carge. So long as the vessel was all right and the cargo uninjured, it would seem that there was no necessity for such haste in leaving her. If the yawlboat could withstand the waves and storm, it is reasonable to suppose that the vessel, which was as yet uninjured, could do so.—

BETTER TIMES COMING.-Within a few weeks there has been a brightening of business prospects in Cincinnati that it is cheering to witness. Our businss men are in better spirits than for some years. They feel that we have touched bottom, and are again getting up in the world. Confidence is being rapidly restored. Values have ceased to shirink, and there is a general tendency to slight advances. Country mer-chants having sold out from top to bottom and cleaned the corners are coming in for fresh stocks. This is remarkable, and the more encouraging because presidential year is proverbially dull for business, and this year we lack our Exposition, and there is an immense travel to the Centennial. Our reporters yesterday interviewed a considerable number of our most prominent men in business affairs, and the general expression was that there was a marked and happy change for the better .- Cincinnati Commercial, 26th.
